Dear Patient

In this little brochure I would like to explain BICOM Bioresonance therapy to you.

You certainly know that with conventional medical methods it can be very difficult to relieve many illnesses, especially such as chronic and allergic ones. Our therapeutic aim is to help you as adequately and quickly as possible. Therefore we have been searching for methods which offer new possibilities in diagnosis and therapy.

BICOM Bioresonance therapy is one of these new possibilities. This kind of therapy is a painless method of treatment and can be applied for various illnesses. BICOM Bioresonance therapy is extremely efficient as it deals with the hidden causes provoking the disease and it is free from harmful side effects.

BICOM Bioresonance therapy is a holistic biological method which has proved its effectiveness in hundreds of thousands cases for more than 20 years.

This is confirmed by many scientific investigations, case studies from therapists reporting successful treatments, letter of thanks from patients that have had excellent results patients and by detailed literature.

On the following pages is a little overview what BICOM Bioresonance therapy is about, how it works and what you can do in order to support your treatment in the best way.

With all good wishes for your health

Your
BICOM therapist

What kind of illnesses can be treated with the BICOM Bioresonance therapy?

Pathological oscillations (frequencies) accompany or aggravate almost all illnesses.

Therefore almost all illnesses can be treated with the help of BICOM Bioresonance therapy with varying results. Very often astounding results can be obtained where other methods or remedies were not successful at all or could achieve nothing but a slight relief.

There are some other therapies such as homeopathy, acupuncture or simply avoiding certain food for a short time which support BICOM Bioresonance therapy in an excellent way.

The BICOM Bioresonance therapy is especially effective for the following illnesses:

- acute and chronic allergic illnesses such as rashes, asthma and hay fever
- neurodermatitis
- acute and chronic inflammations of the gastric mucosa or of the small or large intestines
- rheumatic disorders
- diseases of the internal organs
- migraine/all sorts of pain conditions
- injuries/scar interference fields
- problems of the teeth/ jaw region

There is no therapy without a diagnosis

The therapist uses a special painless test method in order to find out if there are food intolerances, if certain organs are weak or if some toxins might have a negative influence on your body etc. In this way the real but hidden causes of your complaints can be detected.

How is the treatment done

Because of the diagnosis the therapist will discover the most overwhelming strains, with which your body cannot cope and therefore need to be treated.

In most cases the therapist will establish an individual therapy plan and discuss possible accompanying steps.

When being treated with the BICOM device the therapist will place some electrodes on your body and you can either sit or lie down and relax. In general one treatment lasts for 5 to 30 minutes. Patients usually find the therapy pleasant and it is totally painless.

Treatment fees

The fees may vary depending on the practitioner and how many treatments you may need.

What is BICOM Bioresonance Therapy

BICOM Bioresonance therapy is a gentle computer controlled oscillation therapy without any harmful side effects, stimulating the self-healing powers of the body and in most of the cases leading to a recovery.

The human body emits different electromagnetic oscillations: cells, tissue and organs each have their specific oscillations. These single oscillations are in mutual correlation and influence each other. Together they form the patient's entire oscillation spectrum, the individual oscillation pattern.

You can very well imagine that the oscillations of a healthy person have a different structure from those of a sick person. In the oscillation pattern of a sick person the oscillations of foreign substances stored in the body such as amalgam, bacteria, viruses, allergens, mycosis etc. disturb the normal oscillation pattern.

These disturbing electromagnetic oscillations are received and transferred the BICOM device via electrodes placed on certain parts of the body. In the device these oscillations are changed and then returned to the patient's body in the form of healing therapy oscillations. The body is never exposed to any kind of electric current.

BICOM Bioresonance therapy considerably strengthens your own defence and self-healing powers.

In the BICOM device pathological frequency patterns are changed into therapeutically efficient oscillation patterns.

What can you do in order to support your Bioresonance therapy in the best way?

For the whole therapy period and if possible also afterwards, please do not eat any pork or pork sausages, bacon and ham as this stresses your lymphatic system.

Please eat as little sugar as possible. Sugar damages the intestinal flora and favours many diseases connected to the intestines.

During the whole treatment period it is important to drink between 1 to 2 litres of water a day! Water low in minerals is best as it helps to eliminate all toxins deposited in your body. Therefore it is the ideal drink for detoxification.

For at least 6 hours before and after the therapy you should avoid coffee and alcohol.

You might feel tired, warm or cold or perspire slightly. These are responses to the therapy and will disappear soon.
